Privacy Policy

Inverloch Bowling Club Inc (IBC) is committed to respecting the right to privacy and the protection of personal information of our members and other persons who engage with IBC.

When personal information is provided to IBC, the person consents to its use, storage and disclosure in accordance with this policy.

What personal and sensitive information does IBC collect?

Personal Information

Personal information is information or an opinion about an individual whose identity is reasonably apparent, or can be reasonably ascertained, from the information or opinion. It may include information or an opinion forming part of a database whether true or not, and whether recorded in a material form or not.

The information collected by IBC about a person will vary depending on the circumstances of collection. It may include, but is not limited to, a person's contact details (name, email and/or postal address, phone number), date of birth and gender.

Sensitive Information

Sensitive information is a type of personal information that also includes information or an opinion about someone's:

- criminal record; or
- health, genetic information or disability.

IBC is required by law to obtain consent when collecting sensitive information. IBC will assume consent to the collection of all sensitive information that is provided to it for use in accordance with this policy, unless told otherwise.

How does IBC collect personal and sensitive information?

Information may be collected when you:

- become a member of IBC;
- subscribe to any publication of IBC including electronic publications;
- provide details to IBC in an application, consent form, survey, feedback form or incident report;

- provide details to IBC in an application to become a Coach, Umpire or when you complete an accreditation such as Responsible Service of Alcohol;
- enter personal information into, or agree to having your personal information entered into, one of IBC's online systems;
- access the IBC website;
- contact IBC via email, telephone, or mail or engage with IBC via social media;

- Or in other circumstances where IBC is required to do so by law (for education, child protection, work health and safety laws, charitable collections, medical treatment or other legislation in Australia).

Providing information

Depending on the circumstances, some types of information will be required, and others might be optional. If you do not provide some or all the information requested, this may affect IBC's ability to communicate with you or provide the requested products or services.

By not providing requested information, you may jeopardise your ability to participate in programs or competitions or apply for employment or volunteer positions with IBC. If it is impracticable for IBC to deal with you because of you not providing the requested information or consent, IBC may refuse to do so.

Collection from third parties

IBC may collect personal information regarding a child from the parent or other responsible person associated with that child. In many circumstances, IBC collects information from other third parties.

Examples of such third parties could include, but is not limited to, the Australian Sports Commission, the Australian Sports Anti-Doping Agency, the Australian Institute of Sport, the Australian Commonwealth Games Association, non-affiliated bowls organisations or government and law enforcement bodies.

Information storage and protection

IBC stores information in different ways, including in paper and electronic form. Much of the information we collect from and about our members is added to IBC's membership database. When your information is entered into IBC's membership database, the information may be combined or linked with other information held about you. IBC is required to update details of its affiliated membership onto the Bowls Victoria website. This information is shared among Bowls Australia and Bowls Victoria, with each organisation having access to information about IBC members.

Security of personal information

IBC has taken steps to protect the information we hold from misuse, loss, unauthorised access, modification or disclosure. Some of the security measures IBC uses includes strict confidentiality requirements of our employees or volunteers and service providers, security measures for system access and security measures for our website.

How does IBC use and disclose personal and sensitive information?

Use

IBC and third parties to whom we may disclose personal information in accordance with this policy, may use your personal information to:
